they operate and the difference between a contact at a proprietary firm, like Air America or [redacted], Incorporated or the Mullen Company would contact, you deal with contact men, some of whom were military who are cleared, but others are agency who are in there.

Like Gil Greenaway was in the Pentagon, he was an Agency employee, he was not a military man. So when air lines contacted Greenaway they thought they were contacting a military man, but he was really an employee of the Agency, for other reasons. But he was a contact man. So there was an array of different contact men.

Now, in that elaborate context Schorr approached the subject, and he said, were there contacts in the White House?

And I said, well, sure. Being the senior members of NSC we had contact for our Forty Committee work, and then 54/12 Committee, and we knew who to deal with in the White House.

And he said, well, were there ever any otherkind of contacts?

And I said, the only POW contact was a very slight thing tied up with the Mullen Company, and then went on into the story.

And the only way that I heard about the contact was, not that I was able to say that Butterfield was the contact, but that they brought up the name of Butterfield, and they said, we will get this business done --
